QUAKE DEATH TOLL MOUNTS TO 6,000

Work Begins On Sewage Disposal Plant

CALCAR WILL USE SEWAGE IN 30 DAYS

Plant to Be Located Just West of Container Corporation —Men At Work.

It will be a matter of slightly over a month until Circleville's sewage disposal will be treated under the Travers process, according to an announcement by J. T. Travers, owner of patents on the disposal, and associated with the Calcar Products Corporation, owned and operated by Circleville men.

The corporation, with the consent of city council, has chosen a site for the treatment tank on land owned by the Container Corporation of America, formerly the Mid-West Box Co. The Container Corporation has given the City of Circleville a long time lease on the land.

The site is located just west of the company's plant and already the Calcar Corp., has a force of six men with shovels and scrapers excavating for the foundation on which to build the Travers tanks.

All sewage will be caught by the Calcar Corp., just before it enters the river and will be pumped to the tanks where it will be treated under this process. No polution of any sort will be thrown into the Scioto river, according to Mr. Traver's tests, and after the sewage has been treated a sludge which will be made into forms of high grade fertilizer will be found in the bottom of the tanks.

The Calcar Corporation amazed city council a number of weeks ago by its proposal to build a sewage disposal plant at its own expense and no cost to the city, provided the city furnish a site for the tanks. A site at the foot of the sewer was at first proposed but property owners living and owning property near this site, protested, fearful that obnoxious odors might be a result of the disposal plant.

Although Mr. Travers says no odors will come through his disposal system, rather than face a possible lawsuit, the city accepted the offer of the, then, Mid-West Box Co. to locate the plant on its ground.

C. OF C. PLANS MUCH ACTION

Directors Plan To Have Each House In City Numbered —Want Traffic Light.

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce met at the Hanley Tea Room, Monday noon, to consider several important propositions under way. It was reported at the meeting that the Chamber of Commerce had succeeded in having the detour barricade removed from the corner of Court and Main-sts to Court and Mound-sts. This greatly lessens the dangers from traffic at this corner, and due to the increased traffic on Mound-st an effort is being made to have a traffic light placed at the corner of Scioto and W. Mound-sts.

The matter of having all the houses in Circleville numbered was considered and plans are being formulated to have this done.

This is important, not only for the citizens but for many in Circleville who have occasion to visit homes, and have difficulty in finding houses not numbered.

A post office ruling states that to have the benefits of carrier delivery, every house must be numbered, and in this instance alone the necessity of seeing that each house is numbered is important. Then too, many of the houses have the numbers painted over, making it difficult to read some of them.

To assist in this, the Chamber of Commerce asks property owners and residents to check up and see that their houses are properly numbered.

Attorney G. W. Morrison of Ashville was a business visitor in Circleville, Tuesday.

CHILLI DENTAL OFFICE ROBBED

Gold and Stamps Taken By Man Who May Be Same Who Worked Here.

That this city's dental parlors are not the only ones visited by what is thought to be professional robber of dentists' offices was brought out Tuesday when it was learned that the office of Dr. W. W. Gunther, of the Citizens' National bank building in Chillicothe, was robbed Sunday of a small quantity of gold and some postage stamps.

It was at first thought the burglar was a dope fiend but when it was learned he overlooked a quantity of dope, including morphine, this theory was abandoned.

Three local dental parlors were robbed here over the week-end, Drs. G. D. Phillips, R. F. Lilly and G. S. Corne reporting theft.

NEW CHAPTER RECORDED IN PROHIBITION

Supreme Court Rules Home Brew Apparatus May Be Seized By Officers.

WASHINGTON, May 6,— An entirely new chapter in the history of prohibition enforcement has been opened by the unanimous decision of the supreme court that apparatus for the manufacture of home brew may legally be seized and confiscated by enforcement agents.

QUESTION OF HOW FAR

Legal authorities were agreed on this today, even while they differed widely in their interpretations of the court's decision. Everywhere in enforcement and legal quarters the decision was under microscopic scrutiny, with nobody apparently quite sure how far agents may go.

While the implications contained in the court's decision are virtually boundless, the language employed is carefully drawn, so carefully, in fact, that even the officials of the prohibition bureau stepped carefully today in this interpretation.

The whole matter, Justice Holmes emphasized, turns on interpretation of the word "manufacture" as used in the prohibitory laws. The court chose to interpret the word liberally, but at the same time was not so liberal in its own use of words.

Said the court:

DEFINE MANUFACTURE

"The word (manufacture) may be used in a loose way to express the whole process by which an article is made ready for sale in the open market.

"We are of the opinion that the word was used in this loose way, and if the empty containers and the other objects seized were offered for sale in such a mode as purposely to attract purchasers who wanted them for the unlawful manufacture, as we interpret the word, they were designed for the manufacture and could be seized."

"The implications in this decision are enormous," said one legal authority today.

"Why, strictly and rigidly interpreted, if a farmer stood a wagon-load of ear corn along the roadside with a sign on it saying that this grain inherently contained the ingredients for making pooable liquor his wagonload could be seized and confiscated.

"Certainly such a sign would be 'offering for sale in such a mode as purposely to attract purchasers who (might) want it for unlawful manufacture.' Similarly with corn sugar, malt, hops, bottles, kegs corks. If the purchaser wants it for unlawful manufacture its liable to seizure. If he doesn't, apparently it isn't so liable."

While this obviously is an extreme interpretation, nevertheless it served to draw attention to the manifold implications in the decision.

The prohibition authorities are going to step very gingerly in their application of the ruling. Both assistant secretary of the treasury Seymour Lowman and Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, declared today the policy of not going after home-brewers would not be changed by the decision.

INDIANS BLAME MAN'S ARREST FOR DISASTER

Rangoon Scene of Tidal Wave Followed By Fire—Natives Blame British.

LONDON, May 6.—Unconfirmed dispatches indicating a probable death toll in excess of 6,000 filtered through from India today following a disastrous earthquake and fire which devasted a huge area in the vicinity of Rangoon.

Crumpling hundreds of homes in Rangoon and Pegu, about fifty miles north of that city, the quake was regarded by superstitious Indians as a supernatural demonstration over the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, nationalist leader, now languishing in jail near Poona for his campaigns of civil disobedience against British rule.

TIDAL WAVE FOLLOWS

Dispatches to the evening newspapers from Rangoon stated that terrible desolation followed in the wake of the tremblor at Pegu. A tidal wave following the quake was reported to have wiped out scores of lives while fire swept the homes and buildings demolished by the quake added to the horror.

A central news dispatch from Rangoon stated that seventy were known to have been killed there. This message added that 500 were feared to have lost their lives at Pegu.

Disrupted communication facilities, which prevented news of the disaster from reaching the outside world for hours, today made an adequate of the damage and casualties impossible.

From the fragmentary dispatches reaching here it appears the first quake occurred soon after sundown last night, followed by a series of minor disturbances, culminating in an extremely severe disturbance at 8:15 p. m. which reduced large sections of Rangoon and Pegu to matchwood.

Soon after the waters of the Sittagung river rose in a tidalwave, inundating a large area of the latter city.

BLAME BRITISH

During the late hours of the night, while the wreckage of the quake was still smoldering, long lines of natives formed in a mournful procession chanting prayers and blaming the disaster on the arrest of Gandhi by the British authorities.

Dispatches filed direct from Rangoon by creditable correspondents stated the hospitals there were filled to overflowing with wounded, while all business was at a standstill.

Work Begins On Sewage Disposal Plant

CALCAR WILL USE SEWAGE IN 30 DAYS

Plant to Be Located Just West of Container Corporation —Men At Work.

It will be a matter of slightly over a month until Circleville's sewage disposal will be treated under the Travers process, according to an announcement by J. T. Travers, owner of patents on the disposal, and associated with the Calcar Products Corporation, owned and operated by Circleville men.

The corporation, with the consent of city council, has chosen a site for the treatment tank on land owned by the Container Corporation of America, formerly the Mid-West Box Co. The Container Corporation has given the City of Circleville a long time lease on the land.

The site is located just west of the company's plant and already the Calcar Corp., has a force of six men with shovels and scrapers excavating for the foundation on which to build the Travers tanks.

All sewage will be caught by the Calcar Corp., just before it enters the river and will be pumped to the tanks where it will be treated under this process. No polution of any sort will be thrown into the Scioto river, according to Mr. Traver's tests, and after the sewage has been treated a sludge which will be made into forms of high grade fertilizer will be found in the bottom of the tanks.

The Calcar Corporation amazed city council a number of weeks ago by its proposal to build a sewage disposal plant at its own expense and no cost to the city, provided the city furnish a site for the tanks. A site at the foot of the sewer was at first proposed but property owners living and owning property near this site, protested, fearful that obnoxious odors might be a result of the disposal plant.

Although Mr. Travers says no odors will come through his disposal system, rather than face a possible lawsuit, the city accepted the offer of the, then, Mid-West Box Co. to locate the plant on its ground.

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce met at the Hanley Tea Room, Monday noon, to consider several important propositions under way. It was reported at the meeting that the Chamber of Commerce had succeeded in having the detour barricade removed from the corner of Court and Main-sts to Court and Mound-sts. NEW CHAPTER RECORDED IN PROHIBITION

Supreme Court Rules Home Brew Apparatus May Be Seized By Officers.

WASHINGTON, May 6,— An entirely new chapter in the history of prohibition enforcement has been opened by the unanimous decision of the supreme court that apparatus for the manufacture of home brew may legally be seized and confiscated by enforcement agents.

QUESTION OF HOW FAR

Legal authorities were agreed on this today, even while they differed widely in their interpretations of the court's decision. Everywhere in enforcement and legal quarters the decision was under microscopic scrutiny, with nobody apparently quite sure how far agents may go.

While the implications contained in the court's decision are virtually boundless, the language employed is carefully drawn, so carefully, in fact, that even the officials of the prohibition bureau stepped carefully today in this interpretation.

The whole matter, Justice Holmes emphasized, turns on interpretation of the word "manufacture" as used in the prohibitory laws. The court chose to interpret the word liberally, but at the same time was not so liberal in its own use of words.

Said the court:

DEFINE MANUFACTURE

"...The word (manufacture) may be used in a loose way to express the whole process by which an article is made ready for sale in the open market.

"We are of the opinion that the word was used in this loose way, and if the empty containers and the other objects seized were offered for sale in such a mode as purposely to attract purchasers who wanted them for the unlawful manufacture, as we interpret the word, they were designed for the manufacture and could be seized."

"The implications in this decision are enormous," said one legal authority today.

"Why, strictly and rigidly interpreted, if a farmer stood a wagon-load of ear corn along the roadside with a sign on it saying that this grain inherently contained the ingredients for making pooable liquor his wagonload could be seized and confiscated.

"Certainly such a sign would be 'offering for sale in such a mode as purposely to attract purchasers who (might) want it for unlawful manufacture.' Similarly with corn sugar, malt, hops, bottles, kegs corks. If the purchaser wants it for unlawful manufacture its liable to seizure. If he doesn't, apparently it isn't so liable."

While this obviously is an extreme interpretation, nevertheless it served to draw attention to the manifold implications in the decision.

The prohibition authorities are going to step very gingerly in their application of the ruling. Both assistant secretary of the treasury Seymour Lowman and Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, declared today the policy of not going after home-brewers would not be changed by the decision.

HIKER HAS DYNAMITE

Report Aged Wayfarer Carries Two Sticks of Explosives For Protection.

Carrying two sticks of what he said was dynamite in his clothing, and declaring it was for the purpose of blowing up any automobile that struck him, an aged crippled man halted at the Nicholas Kelly store at Johnson's Crossing, Monday morning, then continued on his way toward New Holland, hobbling about on crutches.

The man displayed the dynamite, or at least what looked like two sticks of dynamite which were wired together, in the presence of A. T. Shepherd, of New Holland.

The man announced, according to Shepherd, that he was carrying the dynamite so that if struck by an automobile "we would all go up together."

Sheriff Minton of Fayette-co, late Monday was attempting to locate the man and relieve him of the high explosive he said he was carrying. The man is described as tall, with beard, and using crutches.

Should the man drop the dynamite in the highway and an automobile or truck hit it, the results might prove extremely serious.

INDIANS BLAME MAN'S ARREST FOR DISASTER

Rangoon Scene of Tidal Wave Followed By Fire—Natives Blame British.

LONDON, May 6.—Unconfirmed dispatches indicating a probable death toll in excess of 6,000 filtered through from India today following a disastrous earthquake and fire which devasted a huge area in the vicinity of Rangoon.

Crumpling hundreds of houses in Rangoon and Pegu, about fifty miles north of that city, the quake was regarded by superstitious Indians as a supernatural demonstration over the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, nationalist leader now languishing in jail near Poona for his campaigns of civil disobedience against British rule.

TIDAL WAVE FOLLOWS

Dispatches to the evening newspapers from Ragoon stated that terrible desolation followed in the wake of the tremblor at Pegu. A tidal wave following the quake was reported to have wiped out scores of lives while fire swept the homes and buildings demolished by the quake added to the horror.

A central news dispatch from Rangoon stated that seventy were known to have been killed there. This message added that 500 were feared to have lost their lives at Pegu.

Disrupted communication facilities, which prevented news of the disaster from reaching the outside world for hours, today made an adequate of the damage and casualties impossible.

From the fragmentary dispatches reaching here, it appears the first quake occurred soon after sundown last night, followed by a series of minor tremblors culminating in an extremely violent disturbance at 8:15 p. m. which reduced large sections of Rangoon and Pegu to matchwood.

Soon after, the waters of the Sittagung river rose in a tidalwave, inundating a large area of the latter city.

BLAME BRITISH

During thhe late hours of the night, while the wreckage of the quake was still smoldering, long lines of natives formed in a mournful procession chanting prayers and blaming the disaster on the arrest of Gandhi by the British authoritics.

Dispatches filed direct from Rangoon by creditable correspondents stated the hospitals there were filled to overflowing with wounded, while all business was at a standstill.

EDITOR SAYS CHEAP LABOR INJURIOUS TO INDUSTRIES

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG

WASHINGTON — Maintenance of cheap labor in the south and a narrow policy dealing with it, will be fatal to social and industrial progress, Everett P. Partridge, of Ann Arbor, Mich., associated editor of the journal of the American Chemical Society, declared today

Partridge's statement had a two-fold significance, the observation of his plan would place labor in the south on a higher plane of living and it would remove from the industrial centers of the northern states the difficult competitive situation brought about by lower wages in another section of the country.

Two important industries have migrated from the north—cigarette production to North Carolina—and the textile industry to various sections of the south.

"The fact that labor is cheaper in the south than in more highly industrialized portions of the United States is undoubtedly important in considering the location of new industries in this region," Patridge said.

"It will be a narrow policy, however, which, in attempting to maintain cheap labor costs, permits the same cycle of labor conflicts in the south in the next quarter-century that took place in the development of industry in the northeast."

Partridge declared if shortsighted industrial executives failed to learn by experience, the development of industry in the south is likely to be marked by bitter wars an example of which has recently been provided in North Carolina.

This authority expressed the opinion that "possibly the best means of counteracting radical labor agitation lies, not in riot guns, but in attractive sanitary industrial villages supplied with baseball diamonds, tennis courts and company-operated stores"

He added: "The availability of large blocks of intelligent, loyal and practically 100 percent American Anglo-Saxon labor in the south has been repeatedly emphasized by agencies seeking to develop industry in this region These protagonists of southern labor apparantly rely upon a variation of the nordic myth in assuming that a pure-bred Anglo-Saxon from the Applachians is the superior, from a labor standpoint, or a recent inhabitant of middle Europe."

Partridge, however, pointed out that the southern laborer must be handled from the standpoint of the practical psuchologist instead of through traditional methods of supervision

PRES. LAUDS RED CROSS

WASHINGTON,— The American Red Cross was described today by President Hoover as "a universal agency for giving practical expression to international good-will and to the human sympathy, which is the common heritage of all"

"It is a grave responsibility that the Red Cross holds for our country and there is implied in it a preparedness for ready and instant action," the president told the delegates at the initial session of their four-day convention here.

"And in discharge of this great responsibility it represents more than just "cold-blooded efficiency." Mr. Hoover coontinued "The American Red Cross represents the spiritual quality, the charity and sympathy of a nation to the helpless."

"The nation has grown to public confidence in the efficiency, ability and single mindedness of the Red Cross. We have come to entrust it with a great responsibility, for the Red Cross is today the expression of the national will, the national symphthy, for all those overtaken by castrophe of storm, of flood, of famine. Its call to charity to meet these emergencies is mandatory upon the heart of the nation."

He explained that in the last fifteen years there has been quite a change in the purpose of, and an expansion in the benevolent activities of the great charity organization.

"Originally designed for succor in war, it has now become also the national agency for relief of disaster in peacetimes, both at home and abroad," he said. "In the past decade it has distinguished itself a score of times by effective organization of the saving of life and suffering. Its ever increasing strength represents the growing of the spiritual sense of responsibility of the nation toward those who meet with disaster.

BAUGHMAN BOOKS FEATURE SHOWS

Manager Baughman of the Grand theatre announces that he has just contracted for the exclusive showing of "Bell's Famous Hawaiians" an unusually clever singing organization, which has been playing throughtout the United States and which has more than earned their advertised title, "Best in the Country".

The act which will shown at the conclusion of the feature picture at each performance will extend over a period of forty-five minutes during which time the patrons will be entertained with novelty singing and dancing numbers in addition to the untiring melodies of the stringed instruments such as only these natives of sunny Hawai can properly play.

In addition to the usual program as rendered by these artists, Princess Lei Leiheanna, who claims the distinction of being a daughter of Prince Leiheana, a leader among the social class of Honolulu, will present her own original grotesque dance "The Golden Hula", which has been acknowledged as the favorite among the younger class of Hawaiians today, and which will eventually become popular throughout the United States

A special added attraction with the show is in the person of Baby Bobby, the Child Wonder, who will be the talk of the town Her dancing and singing act is bringing unbounded applause throughout the country.

If you are looking for something worth while, the advent of Bell's Hawaiian Revue in "A Trip to Honolulu" will mean much to you. Thursday May 8.

Parties may come and go, but who ever heard of a twin party—or a party of twins?

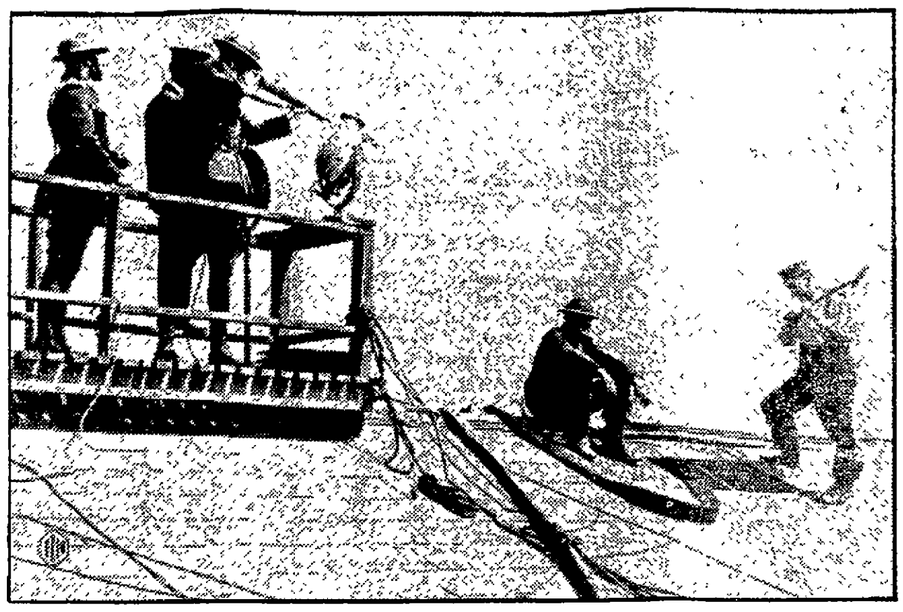
Well, the Grand theatre and The Herald are arranging a twin party, and those who are fortunate enough to see it at the Monday matinee next week, will never forget it. First the San Antonio Siamese Twins—those two sisters whom nature joined together since birth, are to be the hostesses and not less than one hundred sets of twins are expected at this novel party. Everything has been arranged for this unusual party, and all that is necessary for twins to obtain admission to the party, is for them to come to the Herald register their names and address and receive free tickets, if the twins are too small to attend alone, an extra ticket will be given to whoever is in charge of them.

Daisy and Violet Hilton, for those are the names of the Siamese Twins, are anxious to meet all twins in this section, and after the big party a flashlight picture will be taken of the entire group, with the Siamese Twins right in the middle In addition Daisy and Violet will present each twin with a beautiful autographed picture of themselves, and these souvenirs alone will be cherished as a keepsake for years to come

Although suggestions have been made from time to time that perhaps the Siamese Twins could be separated, scientists say such an operation or surgical experiment would be hazardous in the extreme. And why should they be separated anyhow? They're as happy as can be and get a great enjoyment out of their work in vaudeville as musicians, dancers, and singers. They are mighty talented, too, acording to advance reports. But to get back to the party, tickets are ready for distribution, and the party will be held Monday afternoon at the Grand theatre. So come on, Twins, all ages and sizes are welcome to this party.

With all the cotton spinning that Gandhi does, we should think he'd have done enough now to make him a shirt.

Jail Bristles with Guns as Mob Mutters



A hair trigger tensity prevalled at the Ohio State Penitentiary as National Guardsmen, clad in tin hats and armed with machine guns, rifles and sawed-off shot guns took over control of the prison, while others in warlike attitude took up positions on the prison roof ready to quell the mutiny. The 3,900 convicts—sullen, bitter men—awaited with a fatalistic calm and resentment the next move of the militia.

200 IDLE BY OHIO BLAZE

MARYSVILLE, O., May 6- Two hundered men had been forced into idleness today by a $250,000 fire, which, yesterday afternoon, leveled the Federal Brass and Manufacturing Company plant on North Main street here.

Fanned by a high west wind, the fire, which started in the foundry at the rear of the main building, spread rapidly throughout the plant Further fuel to the conflagration was added by exploding tanks of compressed air, which hurled burning debris for several blocks.

Firemen were helpless to extinguish the blaze and confined their exorts to keep the fire from spreading to the main office building of the company and a nearby oil company

All machinery in the factory was ruined beyond salvage, and stored raw materials in the factory were destroyed.

Officials, who estimated the loss at $250,000, declared that there was only $110,000 worth of insurance on the concern.

If these Literary Digest polls don't stop, somebody will be demanding a federal poll tax.

A force 13,000 times stronger than gravity

Whirls away the harmful wax to give Sohio Motor Oil its controlled viscosity

Stubborn stuff—this non-lubricating, harmful wax. Lubrication experts long despaired of breaking its strangle hold on motor oil. Then Standard of Ohio engineers found a way.

First the finest paraffin base crude is chilled to 40° below zero. Then it is whirled in specially designed separators; whirled with a force 13,000 times stronger than the force of gravity. And . . . out flies the harmful wax.

This is one step . . . and an all-important one . . . in a long series of painstaking processes which make it possible to control every element composing the viscosity, or "Body", of New Sohio Motor Oil.

This "Controlled Viscosity" is your assurance that, summer or winter, you will get these advantages in New Sohio Motor Oil:

TOUGH BODY—Stands up under the strain and heat of modern high-speed motor operation.

FLEXIBLE BODY—positive lubrication in summer heat or winter cold.

SMOOTH BODY—an oilier oil, free from non-lubricating wax—provides perfect piston seal and prevents loss of power.

PURE BODY—contains the very minimum of carbon forming elements.

Make a real test of this modern oil in your motor. You'll be delighted with the results after you've drained out the old and put in a fresh crankcase-full of New Sohio Motor Oil . . . wherever you see the Red-White-and-Blue Sohio signs, and you see them everywhere in Ohio.

WHAT CHINA WANTS

China today, under the rule of the Kuomintang party, is said to be getting back to the program of Sun Yat Sen, founder of the modern Chinese revolution. It is particularly interested in economic development, aiming at the reconstruction of agriculture, industry and commerce. The plans are vast.

It calls for the development of a communication system which includes 100,000 miles of macadam- and 1,000,000 miles of macadamized roads, the building and modernization of many canals, the control of rivers, the extension of irrigation, the construction of telegraph, telephone and wireless systems everywhere.

There are to be better commercial harbors built, cities are to be provided with adequate public utilities, water power is to be utilized, modern manufacturing plants are to be established, especially for iron, steel and cement. Mineral resources are to be exploited, farming is to be modernized in method and equipment, arid regions are to be reclaimed and sparsely settled provinces colonized.

This program challenges comparison with what Russia is doing under her Soviet rule. It involves state socialism, which is also involved in Russia's system. It antedated Russia's program in conception, but Russia after starting late has "got the jump" on China.

Can China ever make good with it, as Russia now seems to be doing? Possibly not in this generation, at least. She lacks the unity and spiritual fervor that animate the Russians. But if China should wake up and follow the Russian example of rapid modernization, with the help of American experts, those two great populous lands would give America a run for her money.

TOO FEW EXECUTIVES

The personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange recently told an organization of business and professional men that the country faces a shortage of properly trained executives. One of the great problems of the hour, he said, is adult inefficiency.

Now adult inefficiency probably can be overcome by education, but it will be a harder task to increase the number of able executives--or leaders.

There is much talk of training for leadership. Potential leaders should have special training and education, no doubt. The man at the top should know the business from the ground up, but knowing the business won't make him a good executive unless he possesses also certain innate qualities of leadership.

Leaders, on the whole, are born rather than educated, and they develop through the influence of circumstances and events rather than through special training. Therefore, if the country really faces a shortage of executives it may be because there is less in our civilization than formerly to bring out initiative resourcefulness, vision and courage--the qualities of the true leader-executive.

A NURSE WHO WON'T KILL

Miss Marie Averill Bland, Canadian-born daughter of an English clergyman, would like to become an American citizen. She is a nurse, forty-seven years old. She has lived in New York since 1914, with the exception of nine months spent at Brest caring for shell-shocked soldiers.

Her application for final citizenship papers has been reported unfavorably by the examiners because Miss Bland refuses to bear arms for her country. Asked by the judge if there were any circumstances under which she would bear arms, she replied, "none." Asked if she would bear arms if the security of American homes were threatened, she replied, "No." She said she would be glad to serve as nurse in time of war, at the front or wherever she was needed.

The judge then asked what her religion was, and Miss Bland replied it was merely "living according to the ethics of Christ." That seems to be a serious offense in a would-be citizen. Probably it is unconstitutional. At any rate, it looks as if we can't accept as citizen a 47-year-old woman who takes her religion and profession seriously and refuses to man a machine gun or carry a bayonet.

BOOKLEGGING

A New York book reviewer says that within a month three men have walked into his office carrying bags and offering him "suppressed literature." The books they had for sale are by well known authors and would not be considered obscene by intelligent, decent readers. But they happen to have fallen under the ban of the censors and so are doing a rushing under-the-counter business.

"Booklegging", says the reviewer, is not a joke. It is a business which has sprung up wherever extreme censorship has had its way. It doesn't sound like a wholesale development. It has only an adverse influence on the cultivation of good taste and discrimination in literature.

The best hope for a farm nowadays is to turn it into a golf course.

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XXV.

KEN went down to New York early next morning to see Barton Wade.

"Nobody ever lets me alone," he kept grumbling while Eve bustled about the kitchen making coffee, trying to brown toast without burning it.

"But you are awfully late with your stuff, angel-boy. He's been patient."

"Well, I guess when you consider my public 'Sky Lines' has all the best of the deal. Not an artist on the staff gets the stack of fan mail I do. 'Manhattan Myths' would give me twice the show and if Wade's going to get snooty——"

Eve murmured, "Oh, any of them would like you to work for them, dear. But of course 'Sky Lines' is very high class. Well, see what he has to say . . ."

It was the way she must talk to Ken all the while, like coaxing a child. It was one of the things they had in mind, the people who had said as much as they dared to her against marrying an artist. This eternal playing up, making him believe the magazine world would fall without his work. She had been fascinated by glamor those days but now after only a few months, most of the shine had rubbed off.

Tactfully, with infinite patience, she would hold the thought of deadlines before him, flattering, persuading, winning him over to working when he would have gone to the club or to Elma's or just loafed about. And more than once she had gone through his sketches and mailed a bundle of them secretly, allowing him to think he had done it himself.

He was in a great hurry to be off, coming to the table to stab at his grapefruit, rushing into the bedroom to grab a tie, knotting it all awry, jerking it off and tossing it on the floor, dashing back to the table for a sip of coffee. Eve patted her shorn locks self-consciously and waited for him to say something but in a little while she realized that he had not really looked at her all morning.

"As if we'd been married years and years," she thought with a little sigh. And aloud she said, "We're quite thoroughly married, aren't we, Ken? Married tight and fast and clamped down and bolted."

"Certainly we're married." He gave her a sharp glance as he shrugged into his coat. "What did you think? Be back early, redhead; get an early start tonight."

A quick duty-kiss, a bang of the door and he was gone. And for the first time since she had been his wife Eve did not rush to the window to wave as Ken sent the roadster hurtling into the drive and blew his "too-ooo-too-oo" at the turn of the street.

There was a party tonight, the regular weekly dance at the Pen and Brush Club, and he expected her to be ready. Dinner all waiting when he came in and his shirt laid out with the links in the cuffs. He had been surprised and pleased the first time she had done these things for him, and now he took it all as his due. They would call for Fifi and go on to the club and Ken would dance once with his wife and all the rest of the evening with the French girl while Eve smiled and pretended—smiled and pretended.

But Eve did not go through her usual flurry of preparation today. She put dinner on the table—this was her duty as a wife and her conscience would not allow her to shirk. But afterwards she wet her hair, soaking the curl all out, and brushed it down flatly against her head and put on the cotton stockings and the blue serge skirt and the middy with the earth stains on the front.

And when Ken came home she was in the living room, lounging in an easy chair under a bridge lamp with a magazine on her lap and her feet on the table and a little dust of ashes over the rug where she had flicked her cigarette. Something of a trick for her to smoke nonchalantly and with an air, for Eve hated cigarettes.

He came bursting in, calling that everything was all right; he had seen Wade and Wade had decided to be reasonable.

Ken would dance once with his wife and all the rest of the evening with the French girl.

"I reminded him that my public would trail along if I went over to 'Myths' . . . What time is it, sugar-lamb? Hi, what you been doing to your hair?"

He really saw her at last—stopped in his tracks and stared. She felt a flush crawling up her face and held her breath, answering in Fifi's laughing, nervous way, that she wanted a change.

"Trying to be like other folks, ole sweet. All this persnickety stuff—I see now what you meant about nobody fussing around here. Well, let's eat."

He eyed the middy, the sandals, the cotton stockings. And followed her to the dining room in a still, bewildered way, rubbing his chin. She felt his covert glances all through dinner and fancied he went to dress with a drawn breath of relief.

But Eve did not change her clothes. She attacked the dishes in the sink, dabbed powder on her nose, put on the [illegible] camel's-hair coat. And when Ken said: "Ready?" waiting politely, she laughed and shrugged and ran out to the car.

The evening would have been a strain for Eve had she not been so interested in the part she had chosen to play. Every little pert mannerism, every provocative word and gesture, everything that ever she had seen Fifi do, Eve adopted for her own. She exaggerated a bit, burlesqued a bit, took care that Ken should miss nothing.

If the tribe understood it kept its hands off. After all fair play was in the code and if a wife decided to turn temperamental it was her own lookout. Nory's quizzical scrutiny informed Eve that he understood but Ken she knew was all at sea; the sparkle she worked so hard to keep going, the endless cigarettes she pretended to smoke, the careless manner in which she scattered endearments—all of this amazed and muddled him. And he was so lost in trying to figure it out that he paid very little attention to Fifi Devoe and in retaliation Fifi devoted herself to Pierre Carr and the party broke up earlier than usual.

There followed the strangest week that ever Eve had imagined; a week when she made herself keep always on the move, always chattering, laughing, gesturing, always so full of animation that she began to feel like a wound-up machine. And all the time Ken grew more silent, more watchful, gentle enough with her but irritable with everyone else, making excuses to run in from the studio to see what she was doing, shortening his hours of work, grunting at Fifi when she came to pose, sending her away with scant courtesy.

Some Facts About the Shingles

This Painful Malady Is Now Thought to Be Traceable to Infection Rather than Exposure.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health New York City.

A READER in Ohio has asked me to write about shingles that very painful malady Of course, I am glad to do so Shingles is the popular name for the disease known by doctors as "herpes zoster," or "zoster" or "zona." In some parts of the country it is called "tetter." I suppose it was called "shingles" because of the regularity of the red spots and blisters. Their arrangement is not unlike the regular overlapping of the shingles on a house.

DR. COPELAND

The disease may occur in children, in young adults, or in the aged. In the case of old people it is a serious ailment and may persist for a long time.

It has uncomfortable symptoms. It begins with pain, something like neuralgia. It may occur in the side the neck, the shoulder, or on one side of the head.

The most common spot likely to be affected is the skin over the ribs on one side of the body. The pain follows the course of one of the nerves. The real trouble lies in the root of the nerve, although the disturbance is shown all along the course of the nerve. It usually starts at the spinal column and goes half around the body, like half a girdle.

The eruption is in the form of vesicles or blisters as large as a pea or bean. It occurs in groups of three or four to twenty spots. The surrounding skin is red, sensitive and intensely hot and puffy.

The nerve which goes upward from the eyebrow to the crown of the head may be involved. This is a more serious thing. The eye becomes inflamed and blisters may form on the front of the eyeball. These may leave scars which affect the sight.

Shingles used to be regarded as a disease due to exposure to cold or damp weather. Nowadays the cause is looked for in infection from abscessed teeth, pussy gums, diseased tonsils, or some intestinal or other infection.

The blisters should be protected from the rubbing of clothing. Alcohol may be applied, but care must be used not to break the blisters. Such applications relieve the pain.

With the help of good food, sunlight and fresh air the health can be improved. Cod-liver oil is a good thing to take. But you should follow the advice of your doctor. He will make a study of your case and treat it accordingly.

The patient should remain in bed and keep from worrying and fretting. While it lasts, the malady is a painful one and everything should be done to make the patient comfortable.

Theatres

AT THE METROPOLITAN

Jack Egan, featured player in "The Broadway Hoofer," the Columbia all-talking musical romance at the Metropolitan Theatre, is a striking exception to the rule that actors are temperamental. He enjoys the reputation of being one of the most amiable and even-tempered thespians in Hollywood. Perfect serenity is the keynote of his personality.

No matter how long or arduous the hours of rehersal or shooting are, he preserves the same unruffled exterior. "I've never understood," says Jack Egan, "why actors claim the privilage of being temperamental. Of course actors must be responsive—their emotions must always be near the surface. But the very sensitiveness that is an essential part of their makeup should make them anxious to avoid scenes that must react unpleasantly on the nerves."

Director George Archainbaud was therefore spared much unpleasantness and delay since scenes of "The Broadway Hoofer" required an exactitude that would have tried the nerves of the calmest person. Others in the cast of this Columbia film musical are Ernest Hilliard, Howard Hickman, Gertrude Short and Eileen Percy.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Those who thrilled to the daring air feats in the epic of war aviation, "Wings", are due for another heart-gripping treat when the new, all-talking romance of the war aces, "Young Eagles," zooms into town for its showing at the Cliftona theatre. Charles (Buddy) Rogers, who made his first great hit in "Wings", is the star of "Young Eagles," and William ("Wings") Wellman directed.

"Young Eagles" moves with terrific speed through exciting events on the battle front and in wartime Paris, the glamorous, tinsel city to which the soldiers flocked on their brief leaves from the front. Hundreds of dare-devil pilots zoom and dip dangerously in the realistic air battle scenes. And an intensely interesting situation grows up around the friendship of Buddy, as the American ace, for Paul Lukas, his enemy of the skies.

Buddy goes into the air to attack the doughty Lukas and in a marvelous airplane duel, brings the enemy down within the American lines. Buddy is told to take Lukas to Paris, where the American Intelligence Service wishes to interview him. In Paris Buddy meets and falls in love with Jean Arthur, but she double-crosses him and aids Lukas' escape. Filled with hate, Buddy goes back to the front and, in another hair-raising air fight, brings Lukas down. Lukas explains that it was he whom Jean duped, the girl being a secret service agent for the American forces. Jean and Buddy are reunited.

AT THE GRAND

No less than six sensational song hits make up the melodic texture of "Sunny Side Up," Fox-Movietone musical comedy, now at the Grand theatre.

They provided six of the best numbers they ever have written for this entertaining production which serves to introduce Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell as musical stars.

Sales of the songs totalling well into the millions is indicated by their popularity with audiences all over the country. The song hits are "Sunny Side Up," "If I Had a Talking Picture of You," "You've Got Me Pickin' Petals Off of Daisies," "Turn On the Heat," "You Find the Time I'll Find the Place," "It's Great to be Necked," and "I'm a Dreamer, Aren't We All?"

David Butler directed "Sunny Side Up," and Seymour Felix, celebrated dance director, staged the ensembles and song numbers. There is a chorus of 100 dancing and singing beauties. The supporting cast is headed by El Brendel, Sharon Lynn, Frank Richardson and Marjorie White.

WHAT CHINA WANTS

China today, under the rule of the Kuomintang party, is said to be getting back to the program of Sun Yat Sen, founder of the modern Chinese revolution It is particularly interested in economic development, aiming at the reconstruction of agriculture, industry and commerce. The plans are vast.

It calls for the development of a communication system which includes 100,000 miles of macadam and 1,000,000 miles of macadamized roads, the building and modernization of many canals, the control of rivers, the extension of irrigation, the construction of telegraph, telephone and wireless systems everywhere.

There are to be better commercial harbors built, cities are to be provided with adequate public utilities, water power is to be utilized, modern manufacturing plants are to be established, especially for iron, steel and cement. Mineral resources are to be exploited, farming is to be modernized in method and equipment, arid regions are to be reclaimed and sparsely settled provinces colonized.

This program challenges comparison with what Russia is doing under her Soviet rule It involves state socialism, which is also involved in Russia's system. It antedated Russia's program in conception, but Russia after starting late has "got the jump" on China.

Can China ever make good with it, as Russia now seems to be doing? Possibly not in this generation, at least. She lacks the unity and spiritual fervor that animate the Russians. But if China should wake up and follow the Russian example of rapid modernization, with the help of American experts, those two great populous lands would give America a run for her money.

TOO FEW EXECUTIVES

The personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange recently told an organization of business and professional men that the country faces a shortage of properly trained executives One of the great problems of the hour, he said, is adult inefficiency.

Now adult inefficiency probably can be overcome by education, but it will be a harder task to increase the number of able executives—or leaders.

There is much talk of training for leadership. Potential leaders should have special training and education, no doubt. The man at the top should know the business from the ground up, but knowing the business won't make him a good executive unless he possesses also certain innate qualities of leadership.

Leaders, on the whole, are born rather than educated, and they develop through the influence of circumstances and events rather than through special training. Therefore, if the country really faces a shortage of executives it may be because there is less in our civilization than formerly to bring out initiative, resourcefulness, vision and courage—the qualities of the true leader-executive.

A NURSE WHO WON'T KILL

Miss Marie Averill Bland, Canadian-born daughter of an English clergyman, would like to become an American citizen She is a nurse, forty-seven years old. She has lived in New York since 1914, with the exception of nine months spent at Brest caring for shell-shocked soldiers.

Her application for final citizenship papers has been reported unfavorably by the examiners because Miss Bland refuses to bear arms for her country. Asked by the judge if there were any circumstances under which she would bear arms, she replied, "none." Asked if she would bear arms if the security of American homes were threatened, she replied "No." She said she would be glad to serve as nurse in time of war at the front or wherever she was needed.

The judge then asked what her religion was, and Miss Bland replied it was merely "living according to the ethics of Christ." That seems to be a serious offense in a would-be citizen Probably it is unconstitutional At any rate, it looks as if we can't accept as citizen a 47-year-old woman who takes her religion and profession seriously and refuses to man a machine gun or carry a bayonet.

BOOKLEGGING

A New York book reviewer says that within a month three men have walked into his office carrying bags and offering him "suppressed literature." The books they had for sale are by well known authors and would not be considered obscene by intelligent, decent readers But they happen to have fallen under the ban of the censors and so are doing a rushing under-the-counter business.

"Bootlegging", says the reviewer, is not a joke. It is a business which has sprung up wherever extreme censorship has had its way It doesn't sound like a wholesale development. It has only an adverse influence on the cultivation of good taste and discrimination in literature.

The best hope for a farm nowadays is to turn it into a golf course.

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XXV.

KEN went down to New York early next morning to see Barton Wade.

"Nobody ever lets me alone," he kept grumbling while Eve bustled about the kitchen making coffee, trying to brown toast without burning it.

"But you are awfully late with your stuff, angel-boy. He's been patient."

"Well, I guess when you consider my public 'Sky Lines' has all the best of the deal. Not an artist on the staff gets the stack of fan mail I do. 'Manhattan Myths' would give me twice the show and if Wade's going to get snooty——"

Eve murmured, "Oh, any of them would like you to work for them, dear. But of course 'Sky Lines' is very high class. Well, see what he has to say . . ."

It was the way she must talk to Ken all the while, like coaxing a child. It was one of the things they had in mind, the people who had said as much as they dared to her against marrying an artist. This eternal playing up, making him believe the magazine world would fall without his work. She had been fascinated by glamor those days but now after only a few months, most of the shine had rubbed off.

Tactfully, with infinite patience, she would hold the thought of deadlines before him, flattering, persuading, winning him over to working when he would have gone to the club or to Elma's or just loafed about. And more than once she had gone through his sketches and mailed a bundle of them secretly, allowing him to think he had done it himself.

He was in a great hurry to be off, coming to the table to stab at his grapefruit, rushing into the bedroom to grab a tie, knotting it all awry, jerking it off and tossing it on the floor, dashing back to the table for a sip of coffee. Eve patted her shorn locks self-consciously and waited for him to say something but in a little while she realized that he had not really looked at her all morning.

"As if we'd been married years and years," she thought with a little sigh And aloud she said, "We're quite thoroughly married, aren't we, Ken? Married tight and fast and clamped down and bolted."

"Certainly we're married." He gave her a sharp glance as he shrugged into his coat "What did you think? Be back early, redhead; get an early start tonight."

A quick duty-kiss, a bang of the door and he was gone. And for the first time since she had seen her self Eve did not rush to the window to wave as Ken started the roadster hurtling into the traffic and blew the "toot-toot-toot" of the horn of the street.

There was a party tonight, the regular Wednesday night at the Players and Eve's Club, and he expected her to be ready. Dinner all waiting when he came in and he hurried out with the bike in the cart. He had been surprised and pleased the first time he had done these things for him, and now he took it all as his due. They would call for Fifi and go on to the club and Ken would dance once with his wife and all the rest of the evening with the French girl who fascinated and repelled—smiled and pretended.

But Eve did not go through her usual flurry of preparation today. She put dinner on the table—this was her duty as a wife and her conscience would not allow her to shirk. But afterwards she wet her hair, soaking the curl all out, and brushed it down flatly against her head and put on the cotton stockings and the blue serge skirt and the middy with the earth stains on the front.

And when Ken came home she was in the living room, lounging in an easy chair under a bridge lamp with a magazine on her lap and her feet on the table and a little dust of ashes over the rug where she had flicked her cigarette. Something of a trick for her to smoke nonchalantly and with an air, for Eve hated cigarettes.

He came bursting in, calling that everything was all right; he had seen Wade and Wade had decided to be reasonable.

Ken would dance once with his wife and all the rest of the evening with the French girl.

"I reminded him that my public would trail along if I went over to Myths' . . . What time is it, sugar-lamb? Hi, what you been doing to your hair?"

He really saw her at last—stopped in his tracks and stared. She felt a flush crawling up her face and held her breath, answering on Fifi's laughing, nervous way that she wanted a change.

"Trying to be like other folks, old sweet. All the rage, perfectly stuff—I see now what you meant about nobody fussing around here. Well, let's eat."

He eyed the middy, the cotton stockings and felt loved her to the dining room in a still, bewildered way. Talking all the time. She felt [illegible] glances all through dinner and decided he went to the [illegible] a drawn breath of relief

But Eve did not change her clothes. She attacked the dishes in the sink, dabbed powder on her nose, put on [illegible] camel's-hair coat. And when Ken said: "Ready?" waiting politely, she laughed and shrugged and ran out to the car.

The evening would have been a strain for Eve had she not been so interested in the part she had chosen to play. Every little pert mannerism, every provocative word and gesture, everything that ever she had seen Fifi do, Eve adopted for her own. She exaggerated a bit, burlesqued a bit, took care that Ken should miss nothing.

If the tribe understood it kept its hands off. After all fair play was in the code and if a wife decided to turn temperamental it was her own lookout. Nory's quizzical scrutiny informed Eve that she understood but Ken she knew was all at sea; the sparkle she worker so hard to keep going, the endless cigarettes she pretended to smoke, the careless manner in which she scattered endearments—all of this amazed and muddled him. There followed the strangest week that ever Eve had imagined; a week when she made herself keep always on the move, always chattering, laughing, gesturing, always so full of animation that she began to feel like a wound up machine. And all the time Ken grew more silent, more watchful, gentle enough with her but irritable with everyone else, making excuses to run in from the studio to see what she was doing, shortening his hours of work, grunting at his models, come to pose, sending her away with scant courtesy

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG

WASHINGTON — Maintenance of cheap labor in the south and a narrow policy dealing with it, will be fatal to social and industrial progress, Everett P. Partridge, of Ann Arbor, Mich., associated editor of the journal of the American Chemical Society, declared today.

Partridge's statement had a two-fold significance, the observation of his plea would place labor in the south on a higher plane of living and it would remove from the industrial centers of the northern states the difficult competitive situation brought about by lower wages in another section of the country.

Two important industries have migrated from the north—cigarette production to North Carolina—and the textile industry to various sections of the south.

"The fact that labor is cheaper in the south than in more highly industrialized portions of the United States is undoubtedly important in considering the location of new industries in this region," Patridge said.

"It will be a narrow policy, however, which, in attempting to maintain cheap labor costs, permits the same cycle of labor conflicts in the south in the next quarter-century that took place in the development of industry in the northeast."

Partridge declared if shortsighted industrial executives failed to learn by experience, the development of industry in the south is likely to be marked by bitter wars, an example of which has recently been provided in North Carolina.

This authority expressed the opinion that "possibly the best means of conteracting radical labor agitation lies, not in riot guns, but in attractive sanitary industrial villages supplied with baseball diamonds, tennis courts and company-operated stores."

He added: "The availability of large blocks of intelligent, loyal and practically 100 percent American Anglo-Saxon labor in the south has been repeatedly emphasized by agencies seeking to develop industry in this region. These protagonists of southern labor apparantly rely upon a variation of the nordic myth in assuming that a pure-bred Anglo-Saxon from the Applachians is the superior, from a labor standpoint, or a recent inhabitant of middle Europe."

Partridge, however, pointed out that the southern laborer must be handled from the standpoint of the practical psuchologist instead of through traditional methods of supervision.

PRES. LAUDS RED CROSS

WASHINGTON,— The American Red Cross was described today by President Hoover as "a universal agency for giving practical expression to international good-will and to the human sympathy, which is the common heritage of all."

"It is a grave responsibility that the Red Cross holds for our country and there is implied in it a preparedness for ready and instant action," the president told the delegates at the initial session of their four-day convention here.

"And in discharge of this great responsibility it represents more than just "cold-blooded efficiency." Mr. Hoover coontinued. "The American Red Cross represents the spiritual quality, the charity and sympathy of a nation to the helpless."

"The nation has grown to public confidence in the efficiency, ability and single mindedness of the Red Cross. We have come to entrust it with a great responsibility, for the Red Cross is today the expression of the national will, the national symphthy, for all those overtaken by castrophe of storm, of flood, of famine. Its call to charity to meet these emergencies is mandatory upon the heart of the nation."

He explained that in the last fifteen years there has been quite a change in the purpose of, and an expansion in the benevolent activities of the great charity organization.

"Originally designed for succor in war, it has now become also the national agency for relief of disaster in peacetimes, both at home and abroad," he said. "In the past decade it has distinguished itself a score of times by effective organization of the saving of life and suffering. Its ever increasing strength represents the growing of the spiritual sense of responsibility of the nation toward those who meet with disaster.

BAUGHMAN BOOKS FEATURE SHOWS

Manager Baughman of the Grand theatre announces that he has just contracted for the exclusive showing of "Bell's Famous Hawaiians" an unusually clever singing organization, which has been playing throughtout the United States and which has more than earned their advertised title, "Best in the Country".

The act which will shown at the conclusion of the feature picture at each performance will extend over a period of forty-five minutes during which time the patrons will be entertained with novelty singing and dancing numbers in addition to the untiring melodies of the stringed instruments such as only these natives of sunny Hawaii can properly play.

In addition to the usual program as rendered by these artists, Princess Lei Leiheanna, who claims the distinction of being a daughter of Prince Leiheana, a leader among the social class of Honolulu, will present her own original grotesque dance "The Golden Hula", which has been acknowledged as the favorite among the younger class of Hawaiians today, and which will eventually become popular throughout the United States.

A special added attraction with the show is in the person of Baby Bobby, the Child Wonder, who will be the talk of the town. Her dancing and singing act is bringing unbounded applause througnout the country.

If you are looking for something worth while, the advent of Bell's Hawaiian Revue in "A Trip to Honolulu" will mean much to you. Thursday May 8.

Parties may come and go, but who ever heard of a twin party—or a party of twins?

Well, the Grand theatre and The Herald are arranging a twin party, and those who are fortunate enough to see it at the Monday matinee next week, will never forget it. First the San Antonio Siamese Twins—those two sisters whom nature joined together since birth, are to be the hostesses and not less than one hundred sets of twins are expected at this novel party. Everything has been arranged for this unusual party, and all that is necessary for twins to obtain admission to the party, is for them to come to the Herald register their names and address and receive free tickets, if the twins are too small to attend alone, an extra ticket will be given to whoever is in charge of them.

Daisy and Violet Hilton, for those are the names of the Siamese Twins, are anxious to meet all twins in this section, and after the big party a flashlight picture will be taken of the entire group, with the Siamese Twins right in the middle. In addition Daisy and Violet will present each twin with a beautiful autographed picture of themselves, and these souvenirs alone will be cherished as a keepsake for years to come.

Although suggestions have been made from time to time that perhaps the Siamese Twins could be separated, scientists say such an operation or surgical experiment would be hazardous in the extreme. And why should they be separated anyhow? They're as happy as can be and get a great enjoyment out of their work in vaudeville as musicians, dancers, and singers. They are mighty talented, too, acording to advance reports. But to get back to the party, tickets are ready for distribution, and the party will be held Monday afternoon at the Grand theatre. So come on, Twins, all ages and sizes are welcome to this party.

With all the cotton spinning that Gandhi does, we should think he'd have done enough now to make him a shirt.

Jail Bristles with Guns as Mob Mutters

A hair trigger tensity prevailed at the Ohio State Penitentiary as National Guardsmen, clad in tin hats and armed with machine guns, rifles and sawed-off shot guns took over control of the prison, while others in warlike attitude took up positions on the prison roof ready to quell the mutiny. The 3,900 convicts—sullen, bitter men—awaited with a fatalistic calm and resentment the next move of the militia.

200 IDLE BY OHIO BLAZE

MARYSVILLE, O., May 6- Two hundered men had been forced into idleness today by a $250,000 fire, which, yesterday afternoon, leveled the Federal Brass and Manufacturing Company plant on North Main street here.

Fanned by a high west wind, the fire, which started in the foundry at the rear of the main building, spread rapidly throughout the plant. Further fuel to the conflagration was added by exploding tanks of compressed air, which hurled burning debris for several blocks.

Firemen were helpless to extinguish the blaze and confined their exorts to keep the fire from spreading to the main office building of the company and a nearby oil company.

All machinery in the factory was ruined beyond salvage, and stored raw materials in the factory were destroyed.

Officials, who estimated the loss at $250,000, declared that there was only $110,000 worth of insurance on the concern.

If these Literary Digest polls don't stop, somebody will be demanding a federal poll tax.

A force 13,000 times stronger than gravity

Whirls away the harmful wax to give Sohio Motor Oil its controlled viscosity

Stubborn stuff—this non-lubricating, harmful wax. Lubrication experts long despaired of breaking its strangle hold on motor oil. Then Standard of Ohio engineers found a way.

First the finest paraffin base crude is chilled to 40° below zero. Then it is whirled in specially designed separators; whirled with a force 13,000 times stronger than the force of gravity. And . . . out flies the harmful wax.

This is one step . . . and an all-important one . . . in a long series of painstaking processes which make it possible to control every element composing the viscosity, or "Body", of New Sohio Motor Oil.

This "Controlled Viscosity" is your assurance that, summer or winter, you will get these advantages in New Sohio Motor Oil:

TOUGH BODY—Stands up under the strain and heat of modern high-speed motor operation.

FLEXIBLE BODY—positive lubrication in summer heat or winter cold.

SMOOTH BODY—an oilier oil, free from non-lubricating wax—provides perfect piston seal and prevents loss of power.

PURE BODY—contains the very minimum of carbon forming elements.

Make a real test of this modern oil in your motor. You'll be delighted with the results after you've drained out the old and put in a fresh crankcase-full of New Sohio Motor Oil . . . wherever you see the Red-White-and-Blue Sohio signs, and you see them everywhere in Ohio.

Recreation League Opens With Fast Games

1929 CHAMPS BEGIN SEASON WITH VICTORY

Defeat Lutheran Brotherhood, 9-6, After Trailing at Beginning of Tilt.

By PAT KIRWIN

Swish! Off went the first ball over the plate heaved by Mayor B. T. Hedges who officially inaugurated the opening of the recreation ball loop which started Monday evening and will continue throughout the summer.

Shortly before 6:30 p. m. Mayor Hedges arrived on the scene at the Utilities field and stepped to the pitcher's box. Roy Dumm came to bat with his son "Cuz" catching. Did the mayor pitch ball? And how!

Like wild-fire those balls came right over the plate and in very short order. Batter Dumm was informed by the umpire that he had been struck out. Was it a surprise? We are in no position to say.

Playing fine ball, showing much improvement over last year, with both teams having new members, the Recreation ball loop opened Monday evening when the Coca Colas, winners of last year's cup, defeated the Lutheran Brotherhood by the score of 9 to 6.

This game opening in fast style and was plenty snappy.

The ice was broken in the second inning, when the Lutherans connected with the ball and scored three runs.

As does happen in all ball games, the Cokes seemed rather "up in the air" and a number of errors was recorded against them.

"Russ" Miller was on his toes all the time directing the playing.

The biggest surprise, however, came in the second inning when the Cokes landed on that ball and were able to bring four runs to the home plate.

Things went slowly during the next several innings.

John Walters who held down the position as pitcher for the first eight innings went wrong, as at the end of the game he had nine walks chalked against him. Charlie Scott was the recipient of three of these walks.

Bob Maloney who held down the pitching box for the Cokes during the entire game pitched good ball and only had one walk recorded against him. He also had one strike out.

The Lutherans were able to send in another run during the fifth inning.

The fielders for both teams played good ball in the field, especially did Jack Heeter for the Cokes and Clydus Young for the church boys.

During the game the Cokes connected for a dozen hits, with four errors chalked against them. The Lutheran boys were only able to chalk up eight hits, with six errors, four of which were chalked against Rus Miller.

Monday evening's games at the Utilities field were umpired by Sherde Boyer and Joe Merz.

During the course of the game a "put in whatever you wish" collection was taken and a fair amount was received.

Tonight Doggy Ward's and Weaver's grocers will clash at Mason's and the Modern Woodmen and The Mid-West Box team will play at the Utilities.

PETTITS TIE GORDON TIRE OUTFIT, 1-1

11-Inning Fray Goes For Naught—Each Team Refused To Grant Run.

By REYNOLD GREENE

A fast and thrilling contest featured the opening of the Circleville Recreation Ball League at Mason's Park Monday. The Gordon Tires, who have set the pace for the greater part of the other teams in the pre-season games, were played to a 1 to 1 score in an eleven inning game by the Pettit-Sinclairs.

Gordon's took an early lead in the contest by scoring one run in their first inning at the bat. Pettit's tied the score in the last of the fourth frame on a wild throw.

Thereafter the game was nip and tuck with neither team gaining any advantage, although at various times a player would get to third base and stop there when one of his team mates made the last out.

Mayor B. T. Hedges pitched the first three balls across the plate and officially opened the league's second season of recreation ball.

TO RECOGNIZE HEAVY BOUT

Sharkey-Schmeling Go Into Training For Titular Affair On June 12.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 6—Nationwide recognition of the Sharkey-Schmeling winner on June 12 as the man who is to preserve the dynasty of the world's heavyweight championship virtually was an assured fact today, following a discreet inquiry among the spokesmen for boxing control throughout America. In fact, when the official poll is made public, it will be found that the enterprise has been officially countenanced on practically an international scale, with only the state of Pennsylvania and possibly the British board of boxing control as dissenters.

This almost conclusive approval, hardly anticipated by the Muldoon-Tunney committee when it first nominated itself as the body that was to tell everybody what they——meaning the latter——had decided to do, couldn't have been timed better by the A. A. U. It comes opportunely with the departure today of the Herr Schmeling for his training camp at Endicott, N. Y., and the announcement from Boston that Sharkey will begin talking himself in to his best possible condition here within a week.

The first step in the program of national approval will be taken today when the New York boxing commission will receive the Herr Schmeling's plea for restoration of his license.

Several other schools in the county have specified their intentions of also entering the meet, however, none have been announced.

Circleville is expected to "strut out," as they have some very promising material. Especially John Heiskell, who copped several events at the track meet in Delaware last year at the district meet is expected to bring home some bacon for the local boys.

The outcome of this district meet lies somewhere, as when 60 or more schools are participating no one is capable of relating the results.

The following boys from Circleville will make the trip: John Heiskell, Jaggy Davis, William Hegele, Dick Nickerson, Gaines Hill, Herb Thomas, Wilbur Adkins, Addison Zeimer, Dean White, Albert Hoffman and Leon Gordon.

WEAK HITTERS COME THROUGH TO ANNEX BASEBALL GAMES

NEW YORK, May 6.—Psychologists or maybe its the psychoanalysts, say that lots of just ordinary folks are running around in the more humble walks of life, whereas if they only realized it, they were meant to be royal potentates and rulers of men generally. Now that is the case today of Mr. Bingo Bill Walker of the New York Giants, the man who could not hit.

Up until yesterday, Bill simply didn't know his own strength. To day he does. For in the tilt with Pittsburgh, Mr. Walker not only pitched a nice game but made three hits, one of them a whacking homer with the bases full. The Giants won, 9 to 1, and this morning are again basking in the sunshine at the head of the National League.

It was the same way with Mr. Horace Ford, Cincinnati shortstop. He also discovered himself and hit three doubles and a triple, drove in four runs and scored twice himself, making it quite natural for the Reds to drive Burleigh Grimes to the showers and defeat Boston 10 to 6.

Milt Gaston stopped Cleveland's winning streak by allowing them seven scattered hits as Boston super triumphed 18 to 3, while the Red Sox sledgedhammered a quartet of Indian hurlers.

Babe Ruth was helpless against Urban Faber but Vernon Gomez a rookie, proved a good pitcher for New York and the Yankees won their third straight by outclassing the White Sox, 4 to 1. Willie Kamm and Tony Lazerri basketed homers.

Lefty Grove was good on the mound and Joe Boley, Mule Haas and Al Simmons were pretty superb at bat, so the A's defeated the St. Louis Browns in 12 innings, 4 to 3. Simmons' homer in the final canto told the tale.

Detroit used four pitchers to win from Washington, 3 to 1. Lloyd Brown pitched good ball for six innings but exploded in the seventh as Detroit bunched hits to score two runs.

The Chicago-Phillies game in the National circuit was rained out and Brooklyn and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Recreation League Opens With Fast Games

1929 CHAMPS BEGIN SEASON WITH VICTORY

Defeat Lutheran Brotherhood, 9-6, After Trailing at Beginning of Tilt.

By PAT KIRWIN

Swish! Off went the first ball over the plate heaved by Mayor B. T. Hedges who officially inaugurated the opening of the recreation ball loop which started Monday evening and will continue throughout the summer.

Shortly before 6:30 p. m. Mayor Hedges arrived on the scene at the Utilities field and stepped to the pitcher's box. Roy Dumm came to bat with his son "Cuz" catching. Did the mayor pitch ball? And how!

Like wild-fire those balls came right over the plate and in very short order. Batter Dumm was informed by the umpire that he had been struck out. Was it a surprise? We are in no position to say.

Playing fine ball, showing much improvement over last year, with both teams having new members, the Recreation ball loop opened Monday evening when the Coca Colas, winners of last year's cup, defeated the Lutheran Brotherhood by the score of 9 to 6.

This game opening in fast style and was plenty snappy.

The ice was broken in the second inning, when the Lutherans connected with the ball and scored three runs.

As does happen in all ball games, the Cokes seemed rather "up in the air" and a number of errors was recorded against them.

"Russ" Miller was on his toes all the time directing the playing.

The biggest surprise, however, came in the second inning when the Cokes landed on that ball and were able to bring four runs to the home plate.

Things went slowly during the next several innings.

John Walters, who held down the position as pitcher for the first eight innings went wrong, as at the end of the game he had nine walks chalked against him. Charlie Scott was the recipient of three of these walks.

Bob Maloney who held down the pitching box for the Cokes during the entire game pitched good ball and only had one walk recorded against him. He also had one strike out.

The Lutherans were able to send in another run during the fifth inning.

The fielders for both teams played good ball in the field, especially did Jack Heeter for the Cokes and Clydus Young for the church boys.

During the game the Cokes connected for a dozen hits, with four errors chalked against them. The Lutheran boys were only able to chalk up eight hits, with six errors, four of which were chalked against Rus Miller.

Monday evening's games at the Utilities field were umpired by Sherde Boyer and Joe Merz.

During the course of the game a "put in whatever you wish" collection was taken and a fair amount was received.

Tonight Doggy Ward's and Weaver's grocers will clash at Mason's and the Modern Woodmen and The Mid-West Box team will play at the Utilities.

CATTLE FEEDERS COMPARE FEEDING RATIONS FOR BEEF

One hundred Cattle feeders assembled at the Madison-co Experiment Farm, Thursday to observe results obtained in the feeding trial demonstrated by the experiment farm to show the comparisons in the production of beef from a straight ensilage ration as compared with corn and one-half ensilage ration.

Lot No 1, the ensilage fed cattle received an average daily ration of 49 pounds corn silage, 2 pounds cotton seed meal and 2 75 pounds mixed hay

Lot No 2, received 11 9 pounds shelled corn 7 7 pounds corn stover, 25 pounds corn silage, 2 pounds cotton seed meal and 2 pounds of mixed hay

There were 14 head of cattle in the silage lot and 10 head of cattle in the corn-silage lot Both lots were sorted uniformly and started on feed November 14th with an average weight of 662 pounds per head The feeding trial was completed on April 30th

The average final weight in the silage lot was 1013 pounds and the final weight in the corn-silage lot was 1087 pounds The average daily gain for the silo fed cattle was 2 09 pounds while the corn and silage cattle had an average daily gain of 2 53 pounds

Steer days fed per acre of corn was 321 for the silage lot and 201 for the corn-silage lot. The beef produced per acre of corn fed was 671 pounds for the silage lot and 509 pounds for the corn lot. The cost of 100 pounds gain was $8 12 for the silage lot and $10 19 for the corn lot. The returns per acre of corn including pork was $56.50 for the silage cattle and $58.75 for the corn lot.

The corn and silage finished cattle were appraised at 65 cents per hundred higher that the straight silage fed cattle, but the profit per steer showed $1 89 per head in favor of the silage fed cattle.

The silo in beef production has demonstrated beyond question its efficiency in helping translate the corn crop into economic beef.

Those attending the demonstration from Pickaway-co were: Harley Mace, New Holland; Harry J. Briggs, county livestock manager; Earl Vincent, New Holland and H S Lewis, county agent.

FERTILIZER SALE SHOWS INCREASE

Sales of Farm Bureau fertilizer on May totaled 30,634 tons, compared with 25,262 tons at the same time last year, the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau was notified by the Ohio Farm Bureau Service Company. This is one indication of the growing use of fertilizer, in addition to the fact that the 1930 tonage to date exceeds the tonage sold all last season by 2,000 tons

ASKS SENATE TO TAKE ERIE

WASHINGTON, May 6— Immediate taking over and operation of the Erie canal by the federal Government was advocated by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, before the senate commerce committee at the first of the hearings on the pending river and harbors bill today.

"The Erie canal is a great national waterway with New York at one end and Chicago at the other," he said, "with great industrial centers in between, and it must be preserved.

"I am in favor of the government taking it over at once and operating it. The Erie canal Senators, is not a "white elephant."

THE SPIRIT OF THE RESTLESS SEX

It's time for our yearly speech on woman suffrage. (Homer, a glass of water, please . . . thank you.) Ahem—ladies and gentlemen—one half score and no months ago, our women folks brought forth on this continent a new amendment to the Constitution, the privilege of full citizenship and—and—well, do you know that reminds us of a story. Did you ever hear the one about the old lady who—oh, you have?—well, let's see, where are those notes? . . . They were here just a moment ago . . . we can't do the oration justice without notes . . . oh, dear, oh, dear . . .

Well, at least we can dedicate this issue of the R. T. T. to the women. And we do. With deepest admiration and respect. For in spite of being the Restless Sex, the ladies know what they want. They wanted to vote. They're voting. And doing a pretty good job of it.

Moreover, we're here to say, they know what they want to buy, too. They know values, they know prices, they know what to expect from quality. Merchandise. Which perhaps accounts for the reason so many of them trade here once and come back for more. That may sound like a lot of ho-hum to some of our men readers, but we in the business know differently. All we hope is that we may continue to deserve the same feminine confidence and patronage in the future, that we have in the past.

Figures don't lie—and as an example of the preceding paragraph we mention that out of the 65 Heatrolas sold in this community last year, we owe 65 sales to the fact that women would be satisfied with nothing but the best. If that isn't proof, please come in and tell us just what proof is.

Some like to eat standing up, some enjoy their three squares off a one-armed lunch chair, but others, who prefer their meals in an atmosphere of beauty, dignity and refinement, will cast an approving eye at the three new dining room suites now on display. And the price of any of them will not impair the appetite.

Spring and summer bring all kinds of things into life, after being holed up all winter. Trees and flowers burst forth in all of their beauty and glory. Frogs string up their instruments and strum along the banks of the creeks and ponds. We could go on and on but what we wanted to tell you is that the pestiferous clothes moth get hungry and preys upon anything that is woolen or made of hair or fur. Watch your mohair covered furniture and your woolen clothing as well as your furs. If you want to know how to take care of mohair furniture, we'll gladly tell you how to prevent moth and we'll not charge you one red cent. Just ask H. G. or his better (?) half.

Speaking of moth making a pantry of your woolen and fur goods, reminds us that one of the best ways to keep these pesky boogers out of clothing is to have them dry cleaned and then store them for the summer in one of our Cavalier Cedar Chests. We have a nice assortment of patterns and sizes, all priced reasonably. Better drop in real soon, as it takes but ten days for moth eggs to hatch and they begin working as soon as they emerge from the egg. They're hungry, too, and don't you forget it.

It was our privilege some days ago to furnish the kitchen, dining room, and living room, for one of the young married couples of this city. The husband was in to see us Saturday and told us that they were more than pleased with their furniture and that every one remarked how beautiful it all was. We're glad that they are pleased. That has been the writer's business for the past 14 years. Have you given us a chance to help you with your furniture problems? We'd be glad to do so at any time. Perhaps your furniture went out of style with the bustle and the mutton-leg sleeve. If so, it's time to change. You wouldn't want folks to see you in a dress just described, why let them see you using furniture just as out-of-date?

FIREMEN HURT DURING BLAZE

TIFFIN, O., May 6— Two firemen were overcome by smoke and damage of $20,000 was occasioned here when fire destroyed the Conrad and Lehne Hardware store.

Several blocks of the downtown business section were threatened by the flames for a time. The James Debarnrie and the Kroh Shoe store, which are located in adjoining buildings, suffered heavy losses because of the water and smoke.

Firemen Arlington Beck and Edward Miller were overcome by smoke, but appeared to have suffered no ill effects after medical treatment had been administered to them.

Beck was overcome when the gas mask which he was wearing became defective. He collapsed in the basement of the building and was helped to safety. Miller was on the third floor of the building when the smoke claimed him. He was rescued.

CATTLE FEEDERS COMPARE FEEDING RATIONS FOR BEEF

One hundred Cattle feeders assembled at the Madison-co Experiment Farm, Thursday to observe results obtained in the feeding trial demonstrated by the experiment farm to show the comparisons in the production of beef from a straight ensilage ration as compared with corn and one-half ensilage ration.

Lot No. 1, the ensilage red cattle received an average daily ration of 49 pounds corn silage, 2 pounds cotton seed meal and 2.75 pounds mixed hay.

Lot No. 2, received 11.9 pounds shelled corn, 7.7 pounds corn stover, 25 pounds corn silage, 2 pounds cotton seed meal and 2 pounds of mixed hay.

There were 14 head of cattle in the silage lot and 10 head of cattle in the corn-silage lot. Both lots were sorted uniformly and started on feed November 14th with an average weight of 662 pounds per head. The feeding trial was completed on April 30th.

The average final weight in the silage lot was 1013 pounds and the final weight in the corn-silage lot was 1087 pounds. The average daily gain for the silo fed cattle was 2.09 pounds while the corn and silage cattle had an average daily gain of 2.53 pounds.

Steer days fed per acre of corn was 321 for the silage lot and 201 for the corn-silage lot. The beef produced per acre of corn fed was 671 pounds for the silage lot and 509 pounds for the corn lot. The cost of 100 pounds gain was $8.12 for the silage lot and $10.19 for the corn lot. The returns per acre of corn including pork was $56.50 for the silage cattle and $58.75 for the corn lot.

The corn and silage finished cattle were appraised at 65 cents per hundred higher that the straight silage fed cattle, but the profit per steer showed $1.89 per head in favor of the silage fed cattle.

The silo in beef production has demonstrated beyond question its efficiency in helping translate the corn crop into economic beef.

Those attending the demonstration from Pickaway-co were: Harley Mace, New Holland; Harry J. Briggs, county livestock manager; Earl Vincent, New Holland and H. S. Lewis, county agent.

FERTILIZER SALE SHOWS INCREASE

Sales of Farm Bureau fertilizer on May totaled 30,634 tons, compared with 25,262 tons at the same time last year, the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau was notified by the Ohio Farm Bureau Service Company. This is one indication of the growing use of fertilizer, in addition to the fact that the 1930 tonage to date exceeds the tonage sold all last season by 2,000 tons.

FILM BUSINESS MUCH BETTER

WASHINGTON, May 6— Advance of sound motion pictures has increased the earnings of the industry a half billion dollars a year, Dr. Franklin S. Irby, editor of a trade magazine, told the society of motion picture engineers in session here.

He said the "talkies" has doubled theatre attendance to the tune of 115,000,000 paid admissions weekly and predicted 75 percent of the theatres in the United States will have sound equipment by the end of the year. At the close of 1929 about 9.000 theatres out of 22,600 were featuring sound pictures, he said.

Will H. Hays, head of the motion picture industry, will address the meeting Wednesday night.

ASKS SENATE TO TAKE ERIE

WASHINGTON, May 6— Immediate taking over and operation of the Erie canal by the federal Government was advocated by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, before the senate commerce committee at the first of the hearings on the pending river and harbors bill today.

"The Erie canal is a great national waterway with New York at one end and Chicago at the other," he said, "with great industrial centers in between, and it must be preserved.

"I am in favor of the government taking it over at once and operating it. The Erie canal, Senators, is not a "white elephant."

THE SPIRIT OF THE RESTLESS SEX

It's time for our yearly speech on woman suffrage. (Homer, a glass of water, please . . . thank you.) Ahem—ladies and gentlemen—one half score and no months ago, our women folks brought forth on this continent a new amendment to the Constitution, the privilege of full citizenship and—and—well, do you know that reminds us of a story. Did you ever hear the one about the old lady who—oh, you have?—well, let's see, where are those notes? . . . They were here just a moment ago . . . we can't do the oration justice without notes . . . oh, dear, oh, dear . . .

Well, at least we can dedicate this issue of the R. T. T. to the women. And we do. With deepest admiration and respect. For in spite of being the Restless Sex, the ladies know what they want. They wanted to vote. They're voting. And doing a pretty good job of it.

Moreover, we're here to say, they know what they want to buy, too. They know values, they know prices, they know what to expect from quality. Merchandise. Which perhaps accounts for the reason so many of them trade here once and come back for more. That may sound like a lot of ho-hum to some of our men readers, but we in the business know differently. All we hope is that we may continue to deserve the same feminine confidence and patronage in the future, that we have in the past.
